

BRECKENRIDGE NEWS.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1861.

JNO. D. BABBAGE

U. S. & T. Local Time Cards.
Mail and Express going East.....10:00 a.m.
" " West.....11:07 a.m.
Express " East.....5:55 p.m.
" " West.....6:00 p.m.
Local Freight " East.....11:00 a.m.
" " West.....10:00 a.m.

TO OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Get the news and get all the news and nothing but the news — From Dan's Celebrated Macinacs in Journalism.

A speech from Hon. John J. Ingalls is now in order.

BRECKENRIDGE is elected in Arkansas, and that's the best of all.

The election of last Tuesday put an end to Reed's bullocking.

PRESIDENT Harrison says there will be no extra session of Congress.

Indiana has gotten back into line with a Democratic majority of 18,000.

DEMOCRATIC roosters are more plentiful in Indiana this year than potatos.

The figures from the late census show a population of over 62,000,000 in this country.

The Illinois Legislature is Democratic and Gen. Palmer will be the next Senator from that State.

It must have been a strain on Quay's nerves to send the dispatch: "I think the State is Democratic."

This small boy will be made to appreciate the McKinley Bill when he has to pay about double price for his Christmas tree-keepers.

MCKINLEY, the author of the impious tariff bill that was calculated to richly poor men in the country, was defeated in Ohio.

Ten county has given in its opinion of the McKinley tariff law, the Force Bill, and the dredge census, and it has spoken in no uncertain tones.

CIRCUIT Court adjourned at Harrisburg, last Saturday, after a full term of three weeks. It is said a very large amount of legal business was disposed of.

The Mexican government has placed an import duty of $1 a ton on cattle shipped from the United States to that country in retaliation for the McKinley Bill.

In the Eleventh Kentucky district where there is a Republican majority of 10,000, the Democrats made things mighty interesting if they were defeated.

Two new candidates are likely to be in the race for Governor, in the persons of Hon. C. M. Clay, Jr., and Dr. Clancy, both members of the Constitutional Convention.

From Cleveland's prediction as to the result of last week's congressional elections were evidently correct. Grant will be the next President of these United States.

The tobacco growers of Mason County met at Mayfield, Monday, and adopted resolutions condemning the Louisville and Cincinnati warehouse combination. There were fifty hundred farmers present at the meeting.

The News congratulates its numerous Democratic readers in these Democratic times on the glorious Democratic results just achieved throughout this land. It is mighty consoling to see the life left in the old party yet.

There is a question as to the constitutionality of the electrical execution law. A New York State Supreme Court of State has been asked to pass upon the matter before any other person is put to death under it.

You a weekly country paper, giving all the local news of your county and the general current news of the week, is the paper that should go into every house. God bless you! And I enclose a copy to go to your friends in this regard, and we offer it to you the entire year for the sum of $1.

On Saturday, the 1st of November, in the year of our Lord 1860, in the city of Philadelphia, the Hon. James G. Blaine did solemnly say: "I have come here to give you warning that as Pennsylvania can't stand alone, she will not nationize two years hence." And in this "Tussey next" Pennsylvania went Democratic by about 10,000 majority.

The Republicans were demoralized in every section of this country last Tuesday. Democratic majorities were plentiful everywhere, which is a good omen for a President in '62. The next House is overwhelmingly ours, and it is believed there has been a gain of seventy-seven Representatives. It is time to turn the world on Reed, Quay & Company.

That is a sad bit of news that we publish today, detailing an account of the destructive fire in our neighboring city of Owensboro. A number of the most handsome and elegant business houses in the city were swept away by the flames, entailing a loss of thousands of dollars. Owensboro is an exceedingly progressive Kentucky city, and this calamity so disastrous upon her prosperity is one that will deplore.

AFTER THE FIGHT.

"The fight is over, and the battle for which the Republican party of this country is being tried," were the words of Congressman Kennedy in his speech that denounced Quay as a treacherous criminal. The election last Tuesday proved the truth of the speaker's words, and indicates that these is little for the g. o. p. to hope for before such a bar. The Republicans are beaten — beaten — beaten by facts and conditions rather than theories. Republican theories have had their day. Men cannot be beaten by them when the facts direct an opposite course. The effects of the McKinley Bill are too potent to escape the notice of the thousands who have been seeking relief from the oppression of centralization. The die is cast, and relief is imminent, and there could be no more forcible evidence of the fact than this mighty uprising of the voters of this entire continent. It is useless to theorize as to the causes of this change. McKinley's depreciation in the estimation of the public is plainly evidenced in the fact that his own district defeated him, again all the tricks and scheming of party leaders could not save him. No influence could be brought to bear upon the minds of the honest voters that would outweigh the catalogue of abominations imposed by the McKinley Bill. "The branded criminal," Quay, ran his own State into the breakers and into the jaws of death. Delawater was Quay's pet, his tool, his一切。 He was a living lie. Bower's majority of over 40,000 down to 6,000 on the other side, shows how the people of Pennsylvania esteem the men who are guilty of so much, yet go free. "Two-dollar" Dudley failed to bring Indiana to the front, as he had hoped, notwithstanding Raun's assistance and the magnetic presence of President Harrison at the polls. The system of private voting proved too strong for the centralization system. Indiana will maintain her position among the Democratic States. It is a very common thing to hear, "I told you so," after any extraordinary event, and the News will claim no honors for prophesy in regard to this election. But the News did predict a general Democratic gain this fall, and also predicted the election of a Democratic president. These predictions were not single guesses, but were based upon existing conditions that spoke plainly to the observer of political workings. Never before has work been more thorough and efficient inside the Democratic ranks and this victory will be a stimulus for the next two years. Democrats will be the leaders here, to the delight of many of their friends here.

Mrs. W. T. Tevis and child, of Richmond, Ky., were the guests of Mrs. A. Dito, Sr., last week.

Miss Hattie Elbert, of Laconia, Ind., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ed Gideon.

Mrs. Belmont of Nelson county, who has been visiting Mrs. A. Moremen, has returned home.

There will be preaching at the M. E. church, Sunday, by the pastor, Rev. Norcross.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Drury, of Pewseyville, were the guests of Mr. A. Moremen this week.

Miss Willie Cumillif, a most charming young lady of near Guston, this county, was married last week to Mr. Alonso M. Young.

Messrs. Ed Gideon and Elvise Wimp left last Wednesday night for New Orleans with 11 head of mules, 1 horse and 10 tons of hay.

Dr. H. A. Dito's condition does not seem to improve any. He was very low last week, but at this writing is resting easier.

Mr. J. W. Ramsey has again taken charge of the stable of Mr. A. W. Moremen. He is a fine trainer of large experience.

On account of the illness of one of our citizens last week, the boys refrained from burning powder over the great Democratic sweep.

There will be races at Wm. Evans' again next Saturday. Several citizens of our town will attend and try to win back what they lost on a former day.

The official vote of Meade county in the congressional race was: Montague, 615; Long, 207. A very light vote was polled.

The ladies of Guston, who for the past two weeks have been visiting in Los Angeles Cal., returned home last Wednesday, much to the delight of their many friends here.

Mrs. Blanche Bell, of Hot Springs, Ark., after several weeks' visit to the Misses Woolfolk, left Saturday for Valley Station, where she will be the guest of Miss Stomestreet.

Mr. J. S. Moremen is at home from Corydon, Ind. He says that the greatest complaint about the workings of the new election law was by some who claimed it took too much meat out of the poor man's mouth.

The Chicago Company closed their week's engagement here Saturday afternoon to a large audience. They had good crowds throughout the week and every one was delighted with their performances.

Our new county judge, H. C. Rawlings, married his first couple last Thursday morning. The contracting parties were Mr. H. C. Morris and Mrs. M. B. Bruce. The Judge performed the ceremony in a very impressive manner.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat, the people of Corydon rejoice. In the last election the McKinley tariff and Force Bill truly made the free citizens feel like the darkest day of the history of this country had come. But the common people — the boys in the trenches — rose in their desperation and overthrew the would-be tyrants and brought the bands assunder that were forged for their enslavement and now thank the good Lord, we can breathe the free air of Heaven in peace and safety under our own vine and fig tree.

Our Republican friends around here are looking awfully blue since the election. One prominent Republican offers to wager $100 that the next President will be Democratic, while another has been heard to say that if there were a second election he would vote for a Democrat.

Let me repeat

BRECKENRIDGE NEWS.

New York Letter.

(FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

SOMETHING ABOUT CLUB LIFE

Growth and Development in New York—What a Great Preacher Thinks About It—Are Women's Clubs an Evil?—An Interview With the Editors of the Christian Union.

The other day a friend of mine invited me to lunch with him at the Allard Club. It is housed in a comfortable old-fashioned dwelling in La Fayette Place—one of the quiet, historic streets in the center of the city. The Astor Library is on this street; the Mercantile Library is at the head of it, and it is surrounded by a number of the most important and substantial publishing houses in the country. The Allard Club was organized somewhat over a year ago by a number of publishers who wanted a place of social meeting for men engaged in literary life—particularly on the business side of literary life. The club-house is a simple and yet most attractive building, part of which is given up to the restaurant and one of the chief advantages of the club is that it gives to its members a reasonable and yet delightful luncheon place that can be easily reached in business hours. Indeed, one of the mottoes which are written about the rooms, artistically carved on the wood mantels or painted on the walls, is this:

"A DINNER LUBRICATES BUSINESS."

The President is William W. Appleton, of D. Appleton & Co., the Vice-President, Dr. J. H. Scott, of the Treasury Company; Bishop Potter, Charles Scribner, Frank Strock, Richard Watson Gilder, editor of The Century, E. L. Burlingame, editor of Scribner's Magazine, William Dean Howells, and the

REV. LYMAN ABBOTT, D. D.,
Pastor of Plymouth Church.

Rev. Lyman Abbott, pastor of Plymouth church and editor of The Christian Union, an annual source of the well-known mottoes of the club.

The day I dined at the Allard Club I met Dr. Abbott, and seized the opportunity to ask him what he believed to be the influence of club life on society. Dr. Abbott is not a man who would be accused of leaning toward the indolence that club life sometimes cultivates, for he is a hardy and constant worker. He may truly be said to have left two men's work in fact when we took account his pastorate over the greatest of Congregational churches, his editorship of the largest of non-denominational religious and family weeklies, and the author of writing, lecturing, committee work, and club work included in either, it would not be extravagant to say that three men of ordinary worth could do all the work to carry on to keep up with him. His great money accounts in part for this; his family is large, and a large part in part, and his skill in social work, a constant in the minor details of his work, also accounts for a good deal. In Plymouth he has important posts, and I find him; in The Christian Union I find him associated with many learned literary authorities, and artistic experience. Mr. Hamilton W. Mullan, a large staff of assistants and outside writers.

I felt that Dr. Abbott's opinion of clubs would be taken from the broad and unanalytic point of view. In response to my inquiry Dr. Abbott replied as follows:

"The club idea has begun to play an established and useful part in our social life. As a matter of fact, clubs are growing in every direction in New York. There are women's clubs, boys' clubs, workingmen's clubs, scientific clubs, church clubs, actors' clubs, literary clubs, philosophical clubs, athletic clubs, and political clubs.

In every one of these

the social element is a word of caution—the corner of the corner of Club" meets once a month to discuss political topics, but it was a dinner first.

The "Reform Club" is doing an important work in disseminating the principles of the new political economy, but it has a comfortable house, with an excellent restaurant. The "Union League Club" is one of the strongholds of the best elements in the political party, but it is well provided with every facility for social service. Of course there are clubs for club men pure and simple, in which the billiard, card and wine rooms and the lounging places in the front windows are the chief features. But, notwithstanding these, there are many clubs in New York, I think, which are founded for social service.

"In my own parish I find the clubs very valuable in the social work of the church. We have several clubs connected with Plymouth church, through which we are enabled to do work that could not be otherwise accomplished. In my own literary work the club to which I belong affords me a place of refuge from interruption, which makes it, as it were, my literary castle. Some of my best writing is done in the quiet library of my club. A man with as many demands upon his time as I have must have a place to which he can retire, and into which, even his own family can follow him.

"A club man and a club-woman are two entirely different characters. A club man is a man who frequents clubs—a moneyed man of indolence—one who prefers the life of a club to that of the active man of affairs. A club-woman—a term invented by the great Dr. Johnson—is one who is possessed of those qualities of temperament and character which draw about her a social circle of her fellow, or which make those fellow-women in such a circle already formed. He is cultivated, well informed, an agreeable conversationalist, high-minded, sweet-tempered, generous, possesses a sense of humor, and is honorable in all his dealings."

At this point up comes Mr. H. W. Martin, the editor of The Christian Union. Mr. Mabie is a genial, hearty, clubbable-looking sort of a man, who has steadily and surely pursued his way in the field of pure literature until he is to-day recognized as one of the leading literary critics of America.

"Here, Mabie," said Dr. Abbott, introducing me, "won't you confirm or controvert what I have said on club life to my friend, who is investigating the influence of club life on our modern society?"

This clubbable introduction insured me a cordial welcome from Mr. Mabie, and as he was just returning to his desk in the substantial granite-faced Christian Union building a few doors down the street, I asked him if he had time to speak with me. "I am very busy," said he, "but I am just now free to go to press to-night"; here a grimy printer's devil hurried into the room with some long blue guilloche proof sheets—but I am very glad to say that I believe that club life can be made to exercise a most beneficial effect on society. Of course there are numerous clubs which are purely social, and do not exist, but some clubs exert a positive influence against such things. It seems to be a law of human nature that men should segregate into groups or clubs. Take, for instance, the Fellowcraft Club, the Authors' Club, of which I am a member; it is a distinct advantage for a man engaged in literary work to meet others like him, those who offer him sympathy, encouragement, and suggestion in his work."

I asked Mr. Mabie if he did not think women's clubs should be included in any discussion of club life.

"Most certainly," said he, "and you cannot go to any better source of information on this topic than your topic that you are writing on the subject of The Christian Union. Mrs. E. L. Betts. She is not only a member of one of the prominent clubs for women in this city, but is an authority on working girls' clubs throughout the country."

Whereas he showed me into an attractive little office at the end of the hall, a view of which I am able to send you, he was soon back again to tell me that a woman can do make a newspaper office not only efficient, but charming.

Mrs. Betts concurred stopped her writing and consented to give me her views concerning club life.

All Split Up.

Washington, Nov. 6.—The practical politicking among the Republicans devotes that evening last a man in his Cabinet who is worth ten additional votes to the party. They are mad, and hold the powers that be in the highest contempt.

The Next Speaker.

Albion, N.Y., Nov. 6.—The practical politicking among the Republicans devotes that evening last a man in his Cabinet who is worth ten additional votes to the party. They are mad, and hold the powers that be in the highest contempt.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Louisville Post.

Democratic Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.

Majority in the Next House.

Estimated as to the Democratic majority in the next House range from 60 to 65. The former, of course, comes from a Republican source—the New York Tribune, and the latter from the New York Sun. Either one will probably, although the fact that the South has held the honor for three Congresses in the person of Mr. Carrol, may operate against the former.